VeriPresent

Prove your remote workers' attendance and time spent on site

Q. How do you prove your remote workforce attends work and evidence how long they spend there?

With Totalmobile VeriPresent, remote workers simply scan NFC tags at the beginning and end of every shift. In addition, service providers and customers both have full visibility and access to a full audit of the remote workers time spent per job.

Compliance

Equipping your workforce with access to VeriPresent enables your organisation to have a reliable and comprehensive audit of when and where your remote staff are working. Using VeriPresent, businesses have greater visibility that mobile workers are carrying out their work whether it's providing care, contracted cleaning or simply proving attendance to meet SLAs.

Consistency

NFC tags are encoded to open custom forms once scanned, therefore information about the visit can be recorded and analysed, leading to a better and more consistent service.

Capacity

VeriPresent allows you to easily record accurate information to ensure staff time is used effectively. Recording information automatically on a mobile device, reduces the need to complete paper-based time sheets. Employees hours are generated with a simple tap of a device, generating more capacity to complete other work - with less time spent chasing manual attendance records from staff.

Cost

VeriPresent removes time consuming paper-based processes, replacing them with easy to use, interactive forms on a mobile device.

“ Verifying staff attendance is now more easy than before and provides confidence that staff are where they should be. ”

How do you know if your workforce has attended and completed the job they're supposed to be doing? Are you confident your homecare workers are providing continuity of care? Do you know if your cleaning staff have attended their job for the full duration? With VeriPresent, your workforce can use their mobile phone to register start and finish times as well as report on any incidents which happen on the job.

What is the solution?

VeriPresent has been designed for any remote workers who need to prove their attendance and the duration they were there for. Simply attach NFC tags to locations around the building or property. The worker can easily scan the tag to prove they were there, logging their start and finishing times.

Capabilities

- Scan in and scan out via NFC Tags to prove attendance at a job or visit
- Report incidents as and when they happen
- Upload photos to support a report
- Full audit of visit detail
- Custom forms depending on building / property being visited, homecare custom reports
